1. Excludes private candidates who could not be classified.
2. Students were considered to be eligible graduates if the number of credits they had acquired plus the the number of credits they were attempting in the school year 1988-89 was greater than or equal to 36, which is the number required for graduation. The number of eligible graduates differs slightly from that published in the High School Certification Annual Report. Unfortunately, it was not possible to obtain school district level data according to the definition used in this report. For a complete explanation of the graduation requirements, see the Senior High School Certification Handbook.

ENDNOTE 2

School Districts are encouraged to offer a wide range of services in a variety of settings to meet student needs (Special Education Policy Manual, Policy 2.A.4). The model of service delivery proposed by the Department encourages the provision of specialized instruction in all classroom settings. The view is that most students should begin their formal education in grade level classroom settings with support services provided when necessary.
